Office of the Ohio Consumers' Counsel Board Seeks New Consumers' Counsel

Summary: Following the announced retirement of Consumers' Counsel Bruce Weston, the OCC's governing board is seeking a successor. After receiving only three applicants – two of which the board deemed were unqualified – the first time that the position was posted, the board extended the application deadline and has now received two more internal candidates.

The board announced it intends to interview Madeline Fleisher, Angela O'Brien (current deputy consumers' counsel), and Maureen Willis (current OCC legal director) for the position.
